

To the hammer, everything looks like a nail.

Don't try to use a single approach with every problem.

There's a right tool for every job. A no-nonsense behavioral approach works well in some situations, but a gentle counseling response is needed in others. Using different tools with different problems makes you adaptable, not weak.