

Be courageously patient.

Don't lash back when emotionally-overloaded kids lash out.

When children are drowning in emotional turmoil, they often lash out at those who dive in to rescue them. Although it takes enormous patience, resist the instinct to lash back. Respond with understanding and wait them out.