

Give kids what they need, not what they expect.

Don't validate their self-fulfilling prophecies of failure.

For some kids, predictable failure can seem better than unpredictable success. Abused or abandoned youth often lure adults into re-enacting familiar roles of Abuser or Abandoner. Surprise them by giving them the acceptance they need rather than the rejection they expect.